Dear Chairman Wheeler:

Our organization specializes in the practice of simplifying medication regimens and improving medication adherence for chronic illness patients.

Our unique approach to the pharmaceutical care management of chronically ill patients is setting the standard in the pharmacy industry. Thanks to our experienced team of pharmacy professionals, we're able to create customer service experiences that make a true difference in our patients' lives.

With more than 32 million newly insured Americans in the healthcare system, it's more important than ever for healthcare organizations to communicate effectively with consumers and patients.

Research shows more than 75% of health inquiries now begin with a search engine and one in 20 searches on Google relates to health information. For our organization, this means there is a strategic imperative, as well as a responsibility, to provide patients with accurate, precise, and timely information regarding prescriptions and prescription medication regimens.

Through the use of our medication adherence pharmacy, which leverages state-of-the-art technologies to provide patients with dose cues and administration reminders, we empower patients to manage their difficult medication regimens while improving their health and quality of life.

None of this would be made possible, however, without the help of a dependable broadband provider. We rely on online and telephonic communications to provide the type of patient-centric care that makes our customers' lives easier.

Please join us in encouraging the availability of affordable, high-speed broadband options to deliver quality healthcare that can lead to a healthier society overall.

Sincerely,
